me that the orders were not intended to apply, and ought not to be applied, to associations which are bonâ fide for the purpose of mutual supply and not of trade and trade profit. Whilst, however, it is not necessary that public servants should be absolutely prohibited from taking part in an association of this restricted kind, it must be remembered that such extra employment may frequently be prejudicial to the public service on the ground that as a general rule no one can serve two masters; and care should be taken that the interests of the Government do not suffer.

5. I concur with your Excellency in Council in thinking that the standing orders as to the connection of Government officers with trading companies apply to Gazetted officers of Government of the covenanted and uncovenanted services, and do not apply in the case of clerks and other ministerial officers in Government employ. With regard to this class, the supervision of heads of department, will, I trust, always suffice as a check; and moreover Government can at any time prohibit any extra employment which in its opinion it is undesirable that its servants should undertake.
